Mission Statement

To inspire and educate the people of Southwestern Pennsylvania to be respectful and responsible stewards of the natural world.

Rain Garden Project

When kids get excited about the environment, everyone wins! Students and teachers at Kerr Elementary School recently worked with us to install a rain garden on the school's grounds. The rain garden will absorb water and runoff, lessening the amount of storm water going into local sewage systems.

Eco Tour Program

ASWP's "Eco-Tour" program expands our programming and provides nature lovers with the opportunity to experience birding hotspots and scenic landscapes. Here, birders on Audubon's recent trip to coastal Maine visit Scarborough Marsh. Other recent tours have included the Delmarva Peninsula, coastal Oregon, Southeast Arizona, and Rio Grande Valley. Birders on these trips have accumulated a list of over 460 species of birds — more than half of the bird species North America has to offer.

Today and Tomorrow

For over 90 years, Audubon Society of Western Pennsylvania has worked to inspire and educate the people of southwestern Pennsylvania to be respectful and responsible stewards of the natural world.

Among the 2008-09 highlights were:

- Launching the Three Rivers Rain Garden Alliance — a collaborative effort using native plant gardens to help address our region's storm water runoff problem.
- Shannon's Camp Fund — Over 100 students took advantage of the recently established scholarship program for families who could otherwise not afford to send their children to our summer camps.
- Construction of the Eps Worley Pavilion and Betsy's Garden Shoppe — bringing new visitor amenities and opportunities to Beechwood.
- Completion of the California Area School District outdoor learning area — the 17th facility on our award-winning Schoolground Habitat Enhancement and Restoration Program (SHERP).
- The Shoop Trail — ASWP's newest trail, is located on a recently acquired 44-acre parcel at Todd Nature Reserve. There are now over five miles of trails at the Reserve.
- Growing the Community Supported Agriculture program at Beechwood — over 140 families ate healthier and helped local farmers by picking up weekly bushels of locally grown produce.
- Hosting the installation of the world's first carbon dioxide-based, geothermal air condition system — a technology that can reduce energy consumption by up to 70% over traditional AC systems.

And already underway for 2009-10:

- Nature Play at Beechwood — an outdoor area for unstructured play and nature exploration for young children.
- New SHERP outdoor learning areas at the Environmental Charter School in Frick Park and Falk Laboratory School at the University of Pittsburgh.
- Expanded Barn Owl research with online nest cameras and satellite tracking of released birds.
- Release of the Western Pennsylvania Birding and Trail Guide — detailing the best locations across 22 counties to view birds and other wildlife.
- New programs, interesting presentations, and countless opportunities to reconnect with nature.

Despite the financial challenges of the past year, our supporters helped us to maintain all of our core programs and activities — while starting new initiatives and making additions and improvements to both Beechwood Farms and Todd Nature Reserves. Through engagement, participation, and example, we'll continue to provide opportunities for people to enjoy, understand, and protect the environment around them.

Summer Camps

Getting muddy is part of the fun at Animal Adventures! ASWP summer camps give kids the opportunity to learn and play in the natural surroundings of Beechwood Farms Nature Reserve. Programs are designed by age and by theme, imparting children with a love of birds, animals, play, and nature.

Eps Worley Pavilion

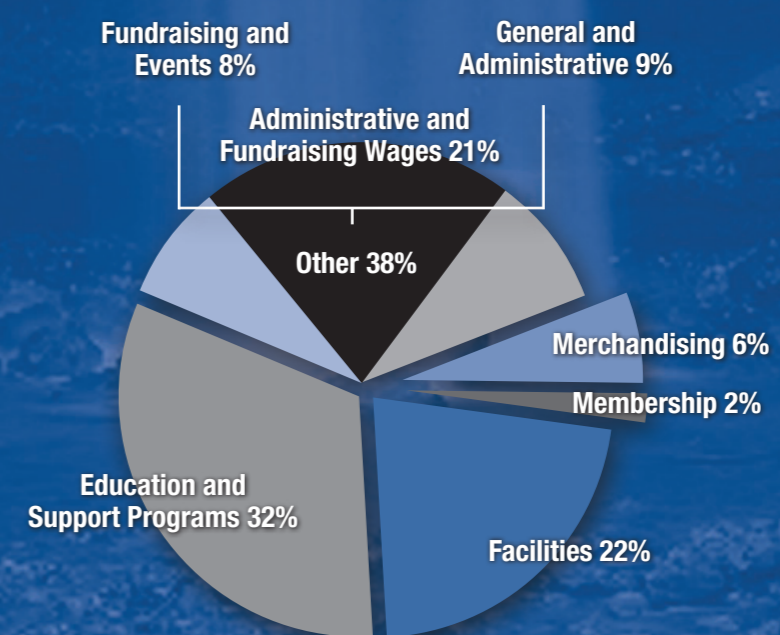

In the fall of 2008, ASWP unveiled the Eps Worley Pavilion located adjacent to the pond. Made possible by the Fox Chapel District Association, the pavilion has created yet another focal point at Beechwood and is used frequently for educational programming, ASWP special events, and picnics.
